The RMG Training Company Service Quality Culture Index

OVERVIEW

This Index is designed to help you build a strong service and sales culture at your organization. The Index lists over 80 specific service/sales related activities performed at those organizations that have developed strong service and sales cultures. This extensive collection of service/sales activities or "culture indicators" is organized into these three distinct categories:

- I. PERFORMANCE EXPECTATIONS
- II. ONGOING DEVELOPMENT AND TRAINING
- III. PERFORMANCE FEEDBACK, REWARDS AND RECOGNITION

The development of a strong service and sales culture is a never-ending process requiring management focus on many interrelated activities. This Index should be completed at least once a year to re-evaluate your status and establish new service and sales strategies for the future.

The SERVICE QUALITY CULTURE INDEX is a powerful management tool to help you periodically evaluate your service and sales culture, and then to identify specific strategic actions to further support your development.

DIRECTIONS

Complete Part A - Service and Sales Culture Evaluation:

Determine a representative number of people in your organization who will complete this Index. Choose a cross section of people from all levels. You may want to include the entire management team.

An appointed executive will then facilitate the completion of the Index at a meeting with the management team. Rate each item in the survey to determine how well your company performs the item in the areas of service emphasis and then in the area of sales emphasis. The following rating scale is used:

2 = Yes, with strong results/we are satisfied.

1 = Yes, with some good results/would like even greater results.

0 = We don't do this, or Yes, we do this but with little or no results.

A summary of everyone's ratings is compiled onto the Service and Sales Culture Summary.

Then, the Service Culture Conclusions and the Sales Culture Conclusions are completed.

Complete Part B - Future Action Plans:

Your management team reviews your current culture by studying the Summary and Conclusions completed in Part A.

The management team then establishes specific action plans to further strengthen your organization's service and sales culture. Each specific action plan will include the results you hope to achieve, when it is to be implemented and who the responsible individual is to execute the new action plan.
